CLINICAL QUESTIONS

Mechanism of Action of Women's Arousal Serum

Women's Arousal Serum's four vasodilators contribute by relaxing the vascular smooth muscles, which consequently dilates peripheral blood vessels (arteries and especially veins). Dilatation (widening) of the blood vessels promotes peripheral pooling of blood and decreases venous return to the heart, thereby reducing left ventricular end-diastolic pressure and pulmonary capillary wedge pressure (preload). Such medications are primarily used to treat or prevent heart disease due to arterial plaque buildup, blood clots, platelet clumping, and to increase blood flow through the coronary artery. These medications are also used to ease migraines, improve blood pressure to organs and tissues, lessen recovery time after surgery, increase immune-boosting effects, and speed up tissue repair/wound healing. However, they contribute to the Women's Arousal Serum complex by exerting effects on the female genitalia. The same vasoactive mechanisms used by these agents to improve blood flow to the heart, lungs, and many other bodily tissues and functions, is believed to also increase vaginal blood flow during stimulation, thereby effectively aiding in the treatment of sexual dysfunctions.

How long do the effects last?

Duration of effect is typically 30 minutes to 2 hours and reapplication may occur as needed. Make sure to talk to your physician or pharmacist about how frequently you should be using Women's Arousal Serum and how much you should apply.

How is this medication best taken?

0.5 mL of the Women's Arousal Serum is most commonly applied onto the clitoris and/or external genitalia 15-30 minutes prior to sex. Women's Arousal Serum should be massaged gently into the area until it is completely absorbed.
